University Applications through UAC Open 5 April 2023

The Universities Admission Centre (UAC) receives applications for most Universities in NSW. Applications are made online and open on 5 April 2023. 'On time' applications close in late September after which the application fee increases significantly. While most courses just involve an application through UAC, it is good to check the requirements for any courses you want to apply for in case there are other requirements such as an audition, a portfolio, an additional application statement to the University, an entrance test (e.g. UCAT for Medicine and Dentistry) and/or an interview that might be required.

When you apply, you can list up to five preferences for courses that interest you. There is a fee to apply, but no fee to change your preferences for the courses you want to apply for. You list your 5 preferences in your priority order.

Get ready to apply!

Applications for undergraduate study in 2024 are opening on 5 April. If you're a Year 12 student in NSW and ACT, we'll email you your PIN that morning so you can get started on your application.

Got questions? We'll be running a live session on our social channels at 5.30pm 5 April with everything you need to know about UAC and how to apply.

INVITATION FROM UNIVERSITY OF NEWCASTLE

Professor Penny Jane Burke takes global steps as UNESCO Chair to address equity, social justice, and access to higher education for all.

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation is a specialised agency of the United Nations, with Chairs appointed to create a network by partnering with institutions across the globe to address pressing challenges, reduce inequalities and improve equitable access to education.

In the first in-depth public presentation in her new role as UNESCO Chair in Equity, Social Justice and Higher Education, Professor Penny Jane Burke will speak to the urgent call from UNESCO to examine and reimagine the role of higher education as a vehicle for social justice.

Through an ambitious and collaborative program of work over the next four years, the UNESCO Chair will foster and extend Newcastle partnership with Ghana, South Africa, the United Kingdom and the Asia Pacific region. A primary focus will be to develop new knowledge to understand how gender inequities manifest in gender-based violence to profoundly impact educational access and participation for victim-survivors. A hub will be developed to create innovative strategies for post-crisis pathways to lifelong learning and higher education, drawing on diverse expertise across research and practice.

Professor Burke will consider how higher education can be mobilised for social transformation and will discuss the program of work to illustrate how this might be translated to practice.

Why study the Pathways Enabling Course at UNE?

Perhaps you have not studied at university before and want to build your academic skills. Maybe you left school before completing your HSC or equivalent, or your results were not enough to enter a university degree. Or, that you finished high school and been in the workplace and need an entry path into university with academic skills to build your confidence with tertiary study.

Do not let your educational background prevent you from the possibility of pursuing tertiary study. You can get university ready with UNE's Pathways Enabling Course. It is flexible and delivered entirely online, aligned to your interests, and detailed without being overwhelming.

Each component of the UNE Pathways Enabling Course is designed to help you to build your knowledge and skills to step into undergraduate study with confidence. The elective units you choose to study could count as credit towards a UNE undergraduate degree — with an ATAR requirement of up to 77.10 — after successful completion of your pathways course.

TAFE

Fee-Free Apprenticeships are a great way for students to launch their careers

There's never been a better time to start an apprenticeship in NSW. The NSW Government is paying the course cost for 100,000 new apprenticeships – meaning apprentices undertaking a government funded apprenticeship no longer face a student fee of up to $2000.

Apprenticeships are a great career pathway. They combine on-the-job training with classroom study to give you the skills and experience employers are looking for. Apprenticeships generally take around 3-4 years to complete, and apprentices earn a salary while they learn.

There are more than 120 different apprenticeship courses available in NSW, in a range of industries including construction, cooking, aviation and automotive.

Dorothea Mackellar Poetry Awards

Entries accepted: March 1 to June 30, results announced during early September

The 39th annual Dorothea Mackellar Poetry Awards are officially open for the 2023 competition season. We're back with new judges, an incoming Patron, and a fresh optional theme to inspire young Australians.

'The Winding Road' was coined by the awards' co-founder, Anne Bell, on a recent train trip home to Gunnedah. She surveyed the highs and flats of the landscape from her window seat, watching as roads transformed to watercourses. It made us think about our own journeys, the paths we always take, and sometimes about the route less travelled. The Dorothea Mackellar Poetry Awards started with 300 entries and have since grown to be Australia's largest and oldest poetry competition for children. Nine categories cover all levels of schooling from Kindergarten through to Year 12, as well as the Assisted Learning categories, the David Maher Award for Small Schools, the Kurrumbede Award, and the coveted Schools' Award.

Religion in Australia has been shaped and manipulated by administrative and bureaucratic systems. What is and isn't a religion for tax purposes, who does and doesn't own land and the idea of indigenous voices in parliament are all affected by the laws and systems in place. This presentation will start by exploring examples and case studies of indigenous religion, including a focus on positionality as scholars and students of religion. In the second part, census data and the questions posed will be examined and how we understand spirituality and atheism. Finally, modern manifestations of religions in Australia will be unpacked as New Age, eco-spirituality and New Religions, as well as the role of taxation and legislation has been in legitimising and de-legitimising new religions. Religion has been impacted and impacted the social, political and cultural spaces of Australia. ARTiculate | Economics: Macroeconomic and fiscal challenges

27 April

Australia confronts several current and medium-term economic challenges. While unemployment is at historically low levels, inflation is at its highest level since the early 1990s. The federal government budget is in deficit and expenditures are projected to grow faster than revenues, in part due to population ageing and social insurance programs. Productivity growth has been low. This talk will provide an overview of current macroeconomic conditions and fiscal challenges.

The webinar will be followed by a Sciences Po Dual Degree information session, presented by Mr Darren Svanfelds, International Programs Coordinator.
